

THE MEN IN NOMINATION.

"At no time in the history of Tammany has the organization been in such a thorough condition of discipline as at present. The defeat of two years ago has taught the leaders such a lesson as experience only can give. The failure of last fall to organize an opposition party is pointed out as evidence of the downfall of the present coalition. At the beginning of the year 1877 a spasmodic effort was made by Morrissey and company to again organize an opposition, but it was speedily killed off by Governor Robinson and the action of the last Legislature. Work was next sent from Albany by Apgar and others, candidates for nomination on the State ticket, that the outsiders would be admitted as delegates to the State Convention. This was the next chapter in the aggressive movements of the outsiders. Again were they de-valuable legions for the city it elected, and is pretty certain, judging from present indications, that it will be able to elect a representative of its interests who will join with the Republicans who think more of ability in a candidate than of party affiliation. The district has a ruling majority. There will be a lively contest in the Fourteenth district between Cozans and Daly. The former is backed by the solid vote of Tammany Hall, while the latter has the support of the district of Sheriff Roltz, whose popularity in the district makes his advocacy of any candidate's claims almost certain success. It is the opinion that Daly's Cozans was a bitter opponent of rapid transit in the Legislature. When Daly was a member of the House, he was a bitter opponent of the same. In the district Michael Henley will in all probability defeat the Tammany candidate. The contest between Gottmann and Acton in the district will promise to be a very close one. The district is a Republican one, and is the only real red out and out Republican assembly district.

freely to Morrissey, and that he could not enter cordially into the anti-Tammany canvass as far as this candidate is concerned.

Mr. O'Brien was met last night at Delmonico's, when the following conversation took place between him and the HERRALD representative—

"Will you take any active part in the Senatorial canvass as between Morrissey and Schell?"

"I have now no interest in the canvass since Mr. Morrissey has been elected. If he had remained in the field, I would certainly have supported him. I regarded this gentleman with feelings of warm friendship. I knew him from boyhood; he was always my friend, and I would have followed him if I did not support him in a canvass like the present."

"Have you any choice in the fight between the two gentlemen now in the lists?"

"The representatives of Tammany are my friends."

"Have not I the same no active part in too local a and Otto Hirsch for member of the Road Board. There were about forty-five delegates present and as many more spectators.

esteemed for his social and business qualities. funeral takes place to-day.

and fined $50. Twenty of the dealers were held bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.